ceeds of the street sales of the next Sunday evening edition of The Times. A penny spent with any newsboy next Sunday afternoon means an additional mite in aid of a worthy cause. The Times feels that this is the proper spirit in which to begin the New Year. One of the newest, as well as one of the most deserving local charitable organizations, has been selected as the beneficiary of the offer-the Home Placing Bureau for Homeless Children conducted under the auspices of the older Society of St. Vincent de Paul. The former society, or bureau, organized but a few days ago, has set out to care particularly for those who are crowded out of the orphans' asylums by reason of the advancing age of the boy or because of the crowded condition of the institution itself. Many boys at the age of fourteen, it is said, have to leave the asylums, and are confronted with the problem of nowhere to go-except the street, Judge De Lacy President.

Judge William H. DeLacy, of the Juvenile Court, is president both of the St. Vincent de Paul Society and the subsidiary home placing bureau. He hailed with genuine delight the offer of The Times, saying:

"I heartily commend the charitable offer. The paper could not aid a more worthy charity at this time. We seek to conserve the home, to make better men and women by taking care of the youth. Our work is limited according to the funds that we have. The So clety of St. Vincent de Paul is compos of about 250 professional and busines men of Washington, volunteers who re ceive no pay, and who do much good in a charitable way. Last year, through various channels, we raised about $8,000 for the poor of the city.

"The Bureau for the Placing of Home less Children is a new society, fostered by the older one, which latter has branches all over the country.
